

Moishe Kavod House is dedicated building an inclusive community of young Jews and activists through Shabbat dinners, social action, Jewish learning, and the arts. We seek to empower young Jewish leaders to build community, organize social action work, run Jewish programming, and connect the Jewish community with social action and 'world repair' tikkun olam work.

As a Jewish organization dedicated to social justice, learning and inclusive community, we are deeply concerned about the safety and well-being of all peoples living in Israel/Palestine. Following Talmudic tradition, we encourage learning and discussion amongst our community members, and open debate and discussion on Israel-related issues within the American Jewish community, a dialogue without threats or fears of retribution and ostracism. Our members hold a wide array of views on how to achieve peace, and we respect the right of all members of Klal Yisrael -- all those in the Jewish community -- to express divergent views with civility and respect.

We welcome opportunities to learn as a community about approaches to peace that reflect our values of equity and justice, and a safe, prosperous future for the Jews, Palestinians, and all peoples. We may host speakers who provide such opportunities for learning, though we do not advocate for any one approach.

As of December 17, 2011